

M&Y Global Services Publishes “The Rise of China BPO” Whitepaper

New whitepaper presents China’s growth and viability as a BPO services location

Cardiff, United Kingdom, 16 November 2010 - M&Y Global Services, a leader in Chinese BPO, today issued a new whitepaper that examines China as a BPO destination. The whitepaper, “The Rise of China BPO”, highlights China’s continued focus to fuel growth in the BPO space and its potential as a leading BPO player amongst other global locations.

The whitepaper coincides with the recent visit by British Prime Minister David Cameron with the largest British trade delegation to China in more than 200 years. The visit has boosted bilateral trade with contracts valued at millions of pounds reportedly being signed as a result.

“China is seeing tremendous growth in general and its BPO sector is no exception. Choosing China is not considered a risky proposition anymore as China BPO is no longer in its infancy. The key is to pick the right processes and to work with the right providers that adhere to global standards,” commented Matthew Cule, M&Y’s CEO.

The whitepaper discusses China as a viable alternative to India for BPO work, China’s prominence as an East-Asian hub, and recent actions China has taken to mitigate its previous challenges to foreign investment.
